

High School All-Star Game August 14; New Brockton Player Participates

The probable tie-breaker in the colorful Alabama High School All-Star football series is scheduled for 7:45 P.M., Friday, August 14, at Tuscaloosa and, excluding a third tie game, the South or the North will take a slim lead in the classic series. Game 17, scheduled at the University of Alabama's Denny Stadium, will see the winner gaining victory number 8 of the series, which now stands at 7-2, so this 1964 game will offer added prestige for the winner.

Basketball All-Stars will meet for the 12th time on Thursday, August 13, at the Foster Auditorium. However, this year for the first time there will be an Alabama doubleheader since Alabama high schools completed their first season under the four classification system last March.

MRS. LAMAR WILSON DISPLAYS NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS - Mrs. Lamar Wilson, of Elba, had the pleasure of enjoying two large blooms on her night blooming cereus last Tuesday night. The two upper blooms shown in the picture are the same as those at the bottom of the picture but enlarged for more detail and then inserted in the picture.

The night blooming cereus is a member of the cacti family. About 1,000 cacti species have been named, varying greatly in form and size. Many curious and beautiful varieties are prized as houseplants, among them the "night-blooming cereus", whose lovely waxy blossoms open in a single night and wither at the approach of sunlight. The plant is a slender sprawling or climbing cactus that has ribbed stems and yellow spines which are often cultivated for its showy, white, strongly-scented flowers which are followed by yellow red-streaked fruit.

The blooms, varying from seven to eight inches across, are really beautiful but the fragrance is indescribable. It is so wonderful.

The night blooming cereus is a South American plant. Latin American natives call the plant "Holy Cactus" and believe it brings good luck and some of them are said to kneel by the flower for the few hours it is in bloom.

Calendars Being Sold By Band Boosters Club

Although school is still several weeks away, the Elba High Band Boosters Club is busy engaged in its annual sale of Band Calendars. Most Elba folk are acquainted with this event and that it is one of the primary sources of band revenue.

According to Mrs. Bonneau Rowe, this year's calendar chairman, people are responding but reminds those who haven't yet placed their order to do so soon.

U. S. Department of Agriculture plant pest control officials are co-operating with the Boy Scouts of America to keep dangerous plant pests from going with the boys to and from their National Jamboree this summer.

Most people know that in order to collect social security benefits for each month in the year, they must limit their earnings to $1200 for that year.

What many people do not seem to realize is that even if one is over 65 and still earning more than $1200 a year, it is possible that some social security benefits can be paid.

For earnings above $1700, $1 in social security benefits is withheld for each $1 in earnings.

However, regardless of total earnings for a year, the claimant can receive full benefits for any month in which he earned $100 or less, and did not "render substantial services" in self-employment. An application must, of course, be filed before any benefits can be paid.

Therefore, if you are over 65 and still working, you should definitely consult your social security district office at 404 South Oates Street in Dothan, Alabama, if you are unable to go to the office in Dothan, a representative, C. W.
